

Feel free...

Dear colleague,

Inattention is still one of the main causes of occupational accidents, despite increased consideration of safety issues. That is why we are concentrating in this campaign on the potential consequences of inappropriate behaviour or an occupational accident, both at work and at home.

Dancing, sport, romping in the garden with the children or simply walking to the baker for rolls. Lounging in an armchair on a Sunday can be great, but could you live with having to sit like that for ever?

The message, therefore, is be aware of the risks that surround you all the time, both at work and elsewhere. And always protect yourself in the right way!

Frederik and Leen go to dance classes every week. It's their ultimate release – or rather it was... Because since Frederik fell off some scaffolding at work, he can no longer even walk, let alone dance. Leen dances on alone... while Frederik looks on.

Do you want to decide where you go and what you do? Then follow the safety instructions and make sure you use appropriate protective equipment! Ask your manager for advice if you are not sure what is required in your specific working environment.

Kind regards,

The Management
