

Disabled for life...

Dear colleague,

Despite higher levels of awareness regarding safety issues at work, lack of attention remains one of the main causes of accidents there. Therefore during this campaign we would like to take a closer look at the consequences that unacceptable conduct can bring at both professional and personal levels.

Accidents can happen very quickly. However, the consequences last much longer and can even be permanent.

Being aware of potential risks all around is the message, continually and everywhere you go, including your own workplace and that of your colleague, as well as outside. Always make sure that you are using the proper protective gear!

Good workers are well rewarded, Gert reasoned to himself. Being a window cleaner, he wanted to make his boss happy by cleaning as many windows in the shortest possible time. Having to reattach his safety harness every time he had to move to the next window took up a lot of time. Too much time, he thought, so from then on he left the harness behind in his van. Until the day that is, when he lost his balance and fell. Heights no longer apply to Gert these days, although he wears a harness every day now, both at home and during his rehabilitation sessions.

Would you like to drastically reduce the chances of having an accident? Then always follow the safety instructions and make sure you've got the right protective gear! If you're not sure what is required in your own working area, always ask your supervisor for advice.

Yours sincerely,

The board of directors
